ABOUT THE PAN-AMERICAN EXPO OF 1901

The Pan-American Exposition, held in Buffalo, New York in 1901, was an international celebration of cultural unity and shared trade interests throughout the Americas. The exposition is perhaps best remembered in national history as the site of the assassination of President William McKinley, who died on September 14, 1901, and the subsequent swearing in of Theodore Roosevelt as our 26th President.

The "Pan-Am" marks a defining moment in Buffalo history, as the city became the center of global focus, and of architectural, artistic, technological, and industrial attention. It was an event meant to usher both Buffalo and the world into the twentieth-century.

Nearly everything listed here can be found in the Grosvenor Room (GRO) at the Central Library. Material in the Grosvenor Room does not circulate and cannot be removed from the room. In a few cases, there are duplicate copies of certain books that can be borrowed from the Non-fiction department, or from another B&ECPL library branch.

Shelf locations are always subject to change.
